a. Functional Consolidation

The Armed Forces Security Agency was established in order to provide for the placing under one authority the conduct of communication intelligence and communication security activities within the Department of Defense, except those which are to be conducted individually by the Departments of the Army, Navy, and Air Force. On 1 October 1949, the Director, AFSA, assumed operational control of the cryptologic activities of the Department of Defense as provided in the Secretary of Defense directive, effecting functional consolidation. ~~TOP SECRET~~b. Physical Consolidation

The general consolidation plan approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff on 25 October 1949, provided the basis for a detailed physical consolidation and movement plan which had the objective of concentrating essentially all communication intelligence and associated research and development activities at Arlington Hall Station, Virginia and essentially all communication security and associated research and development activities at the Navy Communication Station, Washington, D. C. The plan was so designed as to permit the movement to take place in the minimum amount of time consistent with the requirement for continuing the cryptologic operations at a high level during the move. As of 31 December 1949 the movement schedule is 70% complete. It is estimated that, with one minor exception, the physical consolidation will be completed by 31 January 1950.

(1) The following administrative actions have been taken in connection with subject consolidation.

- (a) Establishment of AFSA Headquarters at Navy Communication Station, Washington, 15 July 1949. (See Enclosure "A")
